Alumna – Kelly

Kelly is a 28 year-old graduate of UL at Lafayette. Overall, her undergraduate experience was enjoyable during her time at the University. Unfortunately, Kelly also developed a small amount of resentment towards the University because the University did not fully allow her to discover her strength and weaknesses. During her studies at the University, Kelly took a while to figure out what she wanted to do with her life. She later graduated with a degree in Creative Writing Overall, Kelly felt that the University ill equipped her for the real world after graduation.

Fortunately, time has allowed Kelly to discover what she wanted to do. Kelly now has a great career working for a top notch web design company doing marketing and public relations work. She loves her current job and her degree has made Kelly now realize how much she appreciates the creativity she developed as a writer while she was in college. Since Kelly is so successful, she is now interested in finding ways to help her alma mater. She has a lot of disposable income on hand and would be willing to donate some of her wealth to the University. In addition to her willingness create a financial impact to the University, Kelly also wants to advertise her company to the students at UL. Kelly sees UL as a great source of high-achieving and high work-ethic employees. Thus, Kelly hopes to invest ways through the University in order to benefit her company. One way Kelly hopes to achieve this is by recruiting interns from UL for her company. Another method Kelly hopes to achieve is to advertise her company’s services to the campus – mainly directing her company’s services to ambitious and entrepreneurially minded students.
